DANGER TO CANADA.
She Looks Like Losing Many Water-powers to the United States.

Ottawa, Feb. 21.—One of the most remarkable situations, fraught with danger to the interests of the Canadian people, is developing. Unless the schemes certain parties are utterly annihilated at once there will ensue a fierce struggle between the people of Canada and especially the people of Ontario on the one side and corporation interests in the United States on the other side.

The crux of the matter is the question of waterpower, which as time progresses becomes a more and more vital question, and the loss of which would militate against that success which students of national development claim lies in store for Canada during this twentieth century.

It is to be seen that the Corporation interests in the United States are training every nerve and adopting every conceivable device to acquire the waterpower rights held by Canada along the International boundary. These efforts have become more serious along the St. Lawrence river, particularly on the Ontario border. The attempts made by the notorious James Connors are very apparent and of late so openly ridiculous that there is no danger of Parliament giving him what he and his American coadjutors are endeavouring to obtain in north-western Ontario, Manitoba and Saskatchewan. The case is hardly identical however, though the effect aimed at is just as dangerous.

The statement is made in Ottawa and it is believed that it is made as one result of Hon. Adam Beck's recent visit to the Capital, that if these efforts to alienate these tremendous waterpowers are successful, or look like being successful, Sir James Whitney will go to the country on a hydro-electric scheme, and returned as he would be by a tremendous majority, will go to the foot of the Throne on behalf of the people of Ontario and, incidentally, the whole people of Canada.

The hydro-electric scheme, which is essentially a people's project, would give him this power of appeal against any initial action by the federal government. If the federal authorities so incline as to force Sir James Whitney to carry the case of the people to Imperial headquarters it is a matter of ordinary sequence that Mr. R. L. Borden would force Sir Wilfrid Laurier to go to the people on this issue. Thus the general election which some people believe is near at hand would be brought on.

The points on the St. Lawrence river where danger is lurking at present are at the Long Sault rapids and at Niagara, and the reason why the Ontario government is so deeply interested is that if Canadian rights are alienated at the Long Sault the Ontario hydro-electric commission will be unable to get power to supply the people with electricity in Eastern Ontario, and if Canadian rights at Niagara are lost, the people of Western Ontario will not have enough power to supply their needs in the very near future. The hydro-electric commission aims at supplying all Ontario with cheap power. Niagara is to be the power producer for Western Ontario, the Long Sault for Eastern Ontario, the Ottawa River basin for North-Eastern and the many waterpowers of Northern and North-western Ontario for these districts, thus completing the great scheme.

It is a necessary therefore for the Ontario government to secure powers at the Long Sault. There is grave danger, however, that Sir James Whitney will not get it. A company of American capitalists with whom F. H. McGuigan, formerly of the Grand Trunk Railway, is acting in concert is making a supreme effort to capture the power of the rapids. They have not been told that they will not get it. Now as to Niagara. This involves a still more dangerous situation. At present 80 per cent of the producing power flows over the Canadian portion of the falls, and 20 per cent over the American portion. The question is now raised and insisted upon, that waterflow must be taken into consideration in delimiting international boundaries. Waterpower as utilized for the production of electric energy is only a modern utility and the contention is novel, but none the less not to be disregarded. Hitherto boundaries have been determined geographically for the most part. It is stated that the Canadian International waterways commission have agreed that waterflow must be taken into account. This is a disputed point, and this is where the Ontario government may save the situation, whether the waterways commission can do this. It would seem that it can. For instance it is contended, and with success in some instances, particularly at Port Erie and Welland, that as water goes from international waters to international waters, it will be an international waterway, and it is claimed that the Georgian Bay Canal when it is constructed will be open to American vessels on equal terms with Canadian vessels. The Niagara river, therefore, being international water, it may easily be advanced that the American people have equal rights to the water with Canada. This question affects the whole Canadian people from the Pacific to the Atlantic. If Canada loses waterpowers she will only have herself to blame. In the past blame has been heaped on England for losses, whereas the truth has always been that Canada has never looked after her own interests properly. In every case in which she has been engaged with the United States her side of it has been prepared carelessly and hastily, whereas the case of the United States has always been prepared with infinite care. Therefore Canada lost her rights and the United States won. This is the truthful reason.

The ninth annual meeting and convention of the Canadian Association for the Prevention of Consumption and other forms of Tuberculosis is to be held in Hamilton on Wednesday, Thursday, May 19 and 20 next.

The morning of the first day will be devoted to the reading of reports and the appointment of committees. In the afternoon Dr. White, of Pittsburgh sanatorium, will deliver an address on "The Duty of Municipalities in Reference to Tuberculosis." In the evening of the same day his wife, ship the mayor will deliver an address of welcome, after which Dr. Adams, of Montreal, will speak on a subject which ought to command attention, How One Can Do Most Good in Arresting Tuberculosis at the Smallest Outlay.

The topic set down for general discussion during the forenoon of Thursday is The Duty of the People Toward the Movement for the Extinction of Consumption. Hon. Adam Beck, Mr. Dawney, M.P.P., Dr. Fagan, of Victoria, B.C., Dr. Geo. D. Porter, and a number of others, both physicians and laymen, are expected to take part in the discussion of this subject.

On Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock the meeting will adjourn to the Mountain sanatorium to attend a reception given by the ladies of Hamilton. Not the least interesting part of the program is the visit to the sanatorium, when it will be seen how much can be done for the treatment and cure of consumption at a moderate cost. The success of the Mountain sanatorium will furnish an object lesson well worthy of the study of municipalities contemplating action for the reduction of tuberculosis within their own neighborhood.

Charity Begins at Home.
An Argument Advanced by Glen Campbell, the Manitoba Member.

Ottawa, Feb. 17.—Glen Campbell, the big member for Dauphin, Man., thinks charity should begin at home. He agreed with the gov't. when the proposal was made to send $50,000 for the relief of the sufferers from the floods in France, but he said he knew of cases in the north west where farmers had suffered from floods, but no help had been vouchsafed to them. He read the list of contributions to the French Canadian sufferers from the great Ottawa and Hull fire. Great Britain had given something over three thousand dollars and France a little over one thousand dollars.

Hon. Mr. Fielding, however, could not agree that charity begins at home. He said it was not the function of the Canadian government to assist sufferers in Canada.

A PROBLEM

WHAT would you do with a million or two? Spend it and it give it away. Spend a good time to the very last dime. Make a splash and a roaring display? Maybe you would burn it up doing good. Giving a boost to the ones in distress. Lifting the pace from some suffering back.
Being first aid to the weak, more or less.
That would be cash for a stable dash. Only a million or two, but enough if you were careful and did nothing rash. On it to tack quite a peach of a bluff. Wearing a suit that was loud as a band. Spending your face at the highest price.
Living on only the fat of the land.
Would you remember the friends who when you were busted and shorter than short. Bigger to them like a dime's worth of gold. Picking up perfects and things of that sort.
Or would you pose with the end of your nose in the air like a flag on a pole. Throwing the guy with a mine on his clothes. When you had reached that delectable goal?
How do you know what you'd do with the dough? Claim yourself. Never a chance you will get. You may have money, a dollar or so. That is a safe and a sensible bet. But it is a pleasure to go in a trance. Thinking of what you would do with the dough. That you despair of a ghost of a chance. For but a fraction to e'er comes across.

The Natural Way.
A good story is being told on Alderman Rounder—you know, the big fat one who sits over on the right hand side and votes for all of the franchises. He would rather vote for a franchise than eat, and, indeed, that is how he is able to eat so well.
The other day he had occasion to go home during the middle of the day to get some important papers. But, although he knew the general directions and went to the right street without a guide, he couldn't find the place.
Did he ask the police to help him or look in the city directory? Not much. He knew an easier way. He waited until nightfall and then went straight home. He knew it in the dark.

Hard to Pick.
"Name the baby yet?"
"No, we just can't decide on what to call him."
"What's a name, anyway?"
"What's a name? Say, that kid has three rich uncles."

The Root of Evil.
"Why do people lie?"
"Lie."
"Yes, lie."
"Oh, for various reasons, but mostly because they need the money."
"Knew They Were a Cinch."
"Aren't you afraid of burglars, Ethel?"
"Why should I be? Burglars are all men."

As Usual.
She ran a modest shop in Alberta. Turned out good looks for pelt. But often visitors would say, "Foyevien, small town."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.
We are ready to forgive the most heinous offense when our rights are in no wise touched by them.

It sounds easy when we hear people say that a child should be trained in orderliness, but before one gets half through with the job one's own nervous system is in an alarming state of disorder.

"THE GUY WITH THE PISTOL"
Don't tell your ailments to your friends unless you want them to get back at you by insisting upon your accepting their remedies.
Flinging fault with your neighbors is only your evil way of boasting of your own qualities.
It is a good deal easier to raise a disturbance than it is to raise the revenue to defray the costs.

It is the experience of most of us that we go blithely along our way imposing day after day upon the rights of our fellow creatures and trampling on their feelings until some day for some trifling light as air they turn and rend us. Then we wonder what makes them so narrow and irrational anyway.
Some minds appear to be irrational because they are quick and others entirely logical because they are stupid.

It doesn't take any of us long to tell all we know. It is what we think we know that takes time, energy and hot air.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 23d, 1910.

AWAITING DEVELOPMENTS.

The province of Alberta awaits with considerable interest, development of the opposition to the powers that be at Edmonton.

For four years the Government has had a most peaceful time of it. Everything seemed to come their way.

There never was such a government before or since. Every paper had their portraits and the people fell over themselves to serve them.

Now all that is changed. It is found the ministers are only human.

It is claimed by some, who are in a position to know, that the Great Waterways Railway deals the most scandalous overtures perpetrated by a Canadian government. It is also stated Hon. Mr. Cushing has resigned from the Cabinet to have a free hand in the discussion.

So strong has the feeling become among the members that the parties, Independent and Government, are claimed to be about evenly distributed, and there is a feeling that the Government may be defeated.

That there has been some very crooked work going on there seems to be no doubt, otherwise Mr. Cushing would not take so important a step as to resign his portfolio of Minister of Public Works to fight the question on the floor of the House.

The next move may be the downfall of the Rutherford Government.

KICKING AND KNOCKING.

Mr. Galbraith said Friday night the Town had been knocking the Western General Electric Company for years and undertaken to give the Town and citizens some forcible advice. So far as the News is concerned we never knocked the Western General Co.

Our files will show we stood by the Company before the arbitration. We claimed at that time we were getting the best light for the least money in Alberta, but just so soon as there was universal harmony, J.T. Moore said "Go to, we might as well make some more money out of these people."

We said we would give them phones at $10, but that was to crush out the Bell people, and now that the poles have been removed from the streets, we must get some more money out of these people. And the rates went up like a balloon and the people kicked and they had a right to kick. But there is a difference between kicking and knocking; Mr. Galbraith has got the two things mixed. The citizens are sound, and turning the corner of the station, I discovered a dusky faced gentleman, a few feet asleep seated on a cracker box. I leaned over, and taking him by the shoulder, I shook him violently. He lazily opened one eye, then seeing a strange face, he started violently and jumped to his feet. Amusement was depicted on every line of his countenance. "You stoppin' heah, boss," he said. "Does you know what fo' town this am? Dis am Lacombe?" "Yes, Albert," I replied. "Could you direct me to a hotel?" "Yas Suh! Certainly Suh! Vitoria Hotel over dis way, Suh!" He led me over to what seemed to be a very good hotel, stopping, however, every few steps to yawn, and making several remarks about the weather, complaining that he had been troubled with cold feet ever since his arrival at Lacombe. This, I discovered later, was a very prevalent ailment. The streets were absolutely devoid of life, reminding one vividly of Goldsmith's "Deserted Village," especially at the busy town of Red Deer.

Leaving the hotel, I wandered down the road and entered the first building I came to. An elderly gentleman was busily engaged in sweeping out the store to open for the day's business. "Good day, Sir," I remarked, "could you inform me if the opportunities are good to buy real estate in this town?" As he was, he looked the courier and grasped me firmly by the arm. Leading me into his private office he looked the door and enquired in a whisper if I really was in the market for a come real estate. I replied that I might be if conditions were favorable. Drawing a chair up near the stove for me, and sitting himself on the safe, he said: "My dear sir, you have just come here at the psychological moment to make your fortune. Undoubtedly there is a boom on. Why you are the third man since April to enquire about real estate. No, the other fellows did not buy, but one of them nearly did. He had forty-seven lots near the centre of the town I will sell very cheap; good site for a market garden or a tennis court. I know I would be making an invasion into the territory of the great-grandmother in Ontario is dangerously ill and I feel that I should be there to cheer the old lady's last moments. Shall we say $13.39 a piece? My age? Oh, fifty-six, mister. No sport in this town did you say? Why have the sportsmen town on the line, and if you want profit just read the number of the Globe. Now the editor wouldn't say we were sporty if we weren't, would he? And say, we sure have a hockey team; and they're smart too. Yes, they've got it on all these other towns. Yes, of course, Stettler did beat us, but we refused to play anything but an exhibition game, and they gave us a hundred dollars to do that. Yes, and let of the Lacombe people get in the game free too. Well, let me tell you it was this way. We telephoned Stettler to send 400 tickets for us to sell, and then the crowd just walked past the doorkeeper and told them we had tickets, and next day we sent the tickets back and said we couldn't sell 'em. Pretty clever that, eh? Yes, and when Stettler was up here we won pretty near five hundred dollars in bets, and after the game we were going home, but they thought we were such good sports they'd buy a supper for us, and they did too. Yes, siree. We sure have a hockey team. Why look what they did to Edmonton. Why after the game five of the Edmonton team had to visit a doctor. Who plays are kicking about him because he has not been here since the first of October. Well, there's a couple more on the team haven't either, but bless you they don't know that. Cooke is a mighty good player. Lethbridge wanted to keep him but Lacombe had too much—Say, mister, you ain't from Red Deer are you? You are! Well, I want you to understand we haven't got a man on our team that doesn't live up to the rules. We don't like Red Deer people here. We wouldn't even let their station agent sell them tickets to ride on the special we ran to Stettler. Your going are you? Well, goodbye. But say, if I put the tickets in at $2 each, could we deal? No? Well, good day."

Again I wandered down the road. The desolation was getting on my nerves. The silence was unbearable. I rushed over to the station. Already there was a crowd of people waiting to take the train out. Anxiously I waited for the sound of the whistle. At last it came, and in another minute the train was about to start, and left that ultra sporty town never to return. Since then I have been an ardent opponent of capital punishment. If a man is sent to the gall by the neck there is a worse possible punishment, and he should have it, providing his heart is strong enough to withstand the shock when the Judge says "Lacombe for life."

THE PUBLICITY MEETING.

LARGE TURNOUT OF CITIZENS. Moderate Plan Adopted.

The Oddfellows' Hall was crowded with citizens on Wednesday evening last, in response to the call of Mayor McKee, to discuss the question of publicity for the Town of Red Deer.

The chair was taken by the Mayor, who called on G. W. Greene, president of the Board of Trade, to introduce the subject before the meeting. The Board of Trade favored a publicity agent at a salary of $1,500 per year, with $1,500 for literature and other expenses, which was to be raised by private subscription and a town grant, the agent to devote his whole time to his duties. Mr. Greene contended the work of publicity had not been carried on as thoroughly as it should have been, owing to not having a man of this character to do the work. He thought that now was the time to get to work. We cannot delay if we are to make any progress. He did not believe in waiting until something turned up, but now was the time. Before many weeks something would be doing in Red Deer. He believed that before the end of the year the Alberta Central railway would be built from Red Deer to the Rocky Mountain House. There were already five chapters projected west of the C. & E. between Red Deer and Edmonton, and we ought to do all in our power to further the line from this point. It would take some time for an agent to get his work in shape for a telling campaign, and now was the time in his opinion.

H. H. Gaetz moved a resolution that the time was opportune for an aggressive publicity campaign and pledging the support of the meeting to the same. Why wait until something turned up, warranted by the conditions of the past three years, he believed conditions had changed and that the immigration of 1910 would be the largest on record. He pointed out that the present advantage was in the amount of undeveloped land in the neighborhood. A publicity campaign would attract public attention to them, it would educate their own people, and would create a strong sentiment of loyalty throughout the district. He pointed out the growth that had been made and believed that, with such a campaign, their population would reach over 10,000 people in five years. He believed the most of the money needed should be raised by private subscription; the town might make a small grant. The resolution was seconded by Mr. H. G. Stone.

Mr. Welliver criticized the plan along the same lines as at the Board of Trade meeting. He considered the scheme premature consequently it would do more harm than good. They had nothing to offer as yet, more than they had a couple of years ago, and they would have people in before they were ready; they should wait until they had the railroads. Cameron had to publicity agent, but had seven roads radiating out of the town; Medicine Hat had a $2,500 publicity man, and little to show for it. They should not take hold of conditions before they were ripe. Some said they were two years behind but they were not business men, and this was a case for business judgement. They had more store and residence equipment than any other town warranted. He believed in a publicity campaign, in a publicity agent, but not now. His plan was to fix up the internal affairs first, their power, their light, tax rates, etc., he would work with the same organization as the Board of Trade now had. He would pay a secretary more and would expect more work from him. He would get out a pamphlet describing their advantages he would get after any railway projects shaping this way, he would send a man down to some mixed farming district in the States, perhaps another in the Ontario, to stay there till he got a party organized, and bring the party right through to Red Deer. He favored a 10,000 club. He would speak of Red Deer as the "Educational Centre of Central Alberta," the "Convention City," "Midway City" or something of that sort. He looked forward to 1911 as the great year of progress. When there was something to go on he would be there to help things along.

Mr. Durie made a brief address, claiming he had every thing that a progressive movement required. The town was on a solid basis but we needed more life and push. He would like to see a united people, fighting for the town. We could not be too progressive. He would like to see every man, woman and child a booster for Red Deer. Mr. Brumpton believed that Red Deer was never in better shape than today. More lumber was manufactured, more brick was made, more goods were sold than ever before. But the movement in the south had made Red Deer people restless. They had been handicapped by the lands adjoining them not having been put on the market in 1903-4-5 at the same price as C.P.R. land—$5 per acre. They were strong in natural resources. He believed the time was ripe for a forward publicity move.

Mr. Brown considered railways more important as distributors than as immigration agencies. They wanted industries. They had the biggest asset in their waterpower. He considered they had at present sufficient machinery for publicity if it was used right.

Dr. Collison believed the time premature. If they were going into publicity, they should have something more to offer than they now had to meet the representations of other places. If they spent their money and energy with their present equipment, they would have shot their bolt, and would not be able to rally their forces when the real need arose. He wanted a policy of internal improvement, a cheaper power rate, for instance.

Mr. R. L. Gaetz favored the forward movement—having an agent whose full time would be given to publicity work. He reviewed the material that might be collected, and which would form a splendid advertisement for the district. They were too late rather than too soon, they must move before they reached.

An amendment by Mr. Welliver and Dr. Collison that the Board of Trade plan for a publicity agent was premature, and that a moderate campaign for publicity should be carried out this year was put to the meeting and carried by 38 to 24, a large number not voting either way.

EXPLANATORY

The following notice is being attached to the telephones in town, viz:—

TO NON-SUBSCRIBERS.

This telephone is NOT for the use of THE GENERAL PUBLIC. If you want to use a telephone, arrange to have one installed for YOU. Do not sponge on your neighbors—they may not say so, but they do not like it.

In explanation of the above the Company desires to inform the public that it has had numerous requests from its subscribers asking it to take steps to protect them from the continued annoyance caused by the use of their phones by neighbors.

It the parties who are in the habit of trespassing on neighborly courtesy in this way would stop to think, they would surely recognize the fact that they are becoming an intolerable nuisance and forthwith stop their unwarranted intrusion into the privacy of their neighbors' homes.

The Company certainly objects to this practise, but the subscriber objects even more—and there are many reasons why.—Think!

The Company takes this method of notifying offenders, in the hope that a general notice of this kind will be sufficient—but if the practise is continued, it will have to take more effective, and probably less pleasant, means to stop it. Subscribers have their rights, and the Company intends to protect them.

A heavy beam runs the entire length of the machine; casting of great strength, carrying the pressure bar and axles, are riveted to this beam. No bolts to shake loose.

AXLES Axles are made of cold rolled steel shafting, perfectly uniform in size, and of greater strength than the ordinary rough steel shafting.

WHEELS Wheels are large and strong, with extra long bearings to prevent wobbling. They are 48 inches; 4-inch tire.

GRAIN BOX The grain box is made of selected lumber and perfectly fitted at all points.

FEED The Improved Cockshutt Grain Feed is a positive force feed.

GRAIN TUBES Grain tubes are steel ribbon, rubber or wire tubes.

HITCH The adjustable pulley hitch is the most effective hitch on the market, and far above any other style of hitch. Altogether, these drills are so far ahead of any other make that they are almost in a class by themselves. Why take an inferior drill, when you can get one of these at the same price and terms? Space will not permit us to fully describe them, but we have a sample at our warehouse, and we would be pleased to show it to you. We carry a full line of Plows, Harrows, Land Packers, Disc Harrows, and everything else that would be found in a well-stocked implement warehouse.

SPECIAL COUNCIL MEETING.

TO RE-CONSIDER MOTION.

A Lively Discussion.

A special meeting of the Town Council was held in the Town office Friday evening last, all members being present.

Mayor McKee said this meeting was called to reconsider the motion passed at last meeting. If he had known it was his duty to vote with the Council he would have done so, but he thought it was the duty of the mayor only to give a casting vote. Had he known he had a vote he would have voted.

Mr. Galbraith desired to know if the mayor had given the question deep consideration. He could not understand how a motion could be passed at one meeting and rescinded at the next meeting. He said in parliamentary practice this question could not come up again.

The mayor said he consulted the solicitors and was informed it would be the proper thing to do to reconsider the motion, especially as it was out of order owing to no notice having been given.

The solicitor said there was no doubt it was perfectly proper to reconsider the motion passed at last meeting.

The mayor said all members should vote, according to procedure by law, unless excused.

Councillor Galbraith did not wish to press this point, but there should be some precedent to go on.

Councillor Gaetz said no doubt there were instances where motions had been revoked on at next meeting of Council. There was no desire on his part to be arbitrary as to the question of reconsideration. He remarked that perhaps it might have been better for the mayor to have consulted the mover and seconder of the motion when he determined to have the motion re-considered, and the proposition would have been accepted to it. He believed the motion was out of order, but the precedent to re-consider was a bad one. He expressed his views frankly and had no further feeling in the matter.

As the motion was a serious one the mayor said he felt strongly with regard to the matter. The only ones he had spoken to on the matter were Councillors Gaetz and Galbraith. He consulted the solicitors and they thought reconsideration the best thing to do, especially as it was taking the matter out of the solicitor's hands.

Councillor Hill moved, seconded by Councillor Tallman, that the motion passed at the last regular Council meeting be, the Town settling their differences with the Western General Electric Company by negotiation, be rescinded.

General were really entitled to. He was not aware the town had bucked the company, and asked when the town had done so.

Councillor Galbraith gave an instance: The time the Legislature banquet was here in Red Deer, and the Council refused to pay the account for light.

The mayor said it was understood the account was not ordered by the town, and the company had no legal authority to collect from the town.

The solicitor said J. T. Moore remarked the Council was putting in the light for that banquet.

Councillor Tallman said he never had bucked the company.

Councillor Galbraith agreed they were perplexing people to deal with.

Councillor Carscallen said the motion at the last meeting was rather sudden, and he had not given it as much thought as he should have liked, and he felt that it might be better to meet the mover, become manufacturing nations, and that we should either have to lower our standard of living or give more efficient service or go down and out. True, but the doctor did not point out any practical remedy. We should cease to be selfish and greedy. Just how that was to come about under a system encouraging and enriching the most selfish and greedy exploiters was not made clear.

In short the only points the doctor made clear were that we could exclude the Asiatics from this country but we could not exclude the competition on the world market.

is no room for the advocacy of collusion or compromise. Under the operation of the wage system any temporary advantage gained merges itself into the minimum wage. The doctor can hardly deny that the capitalist buys his labor power as cheap as possible, efficiency considered, which means at cost of production. This leaves no room for robbing the working class as consumers, consequently of Dr. Grant to that effect is erroneous, or is the capitalist foolish in not paying too much for the labor power he purchases? In fact can the capitalists pay more than they do even if they wished to? If I remember right, Dr. Grant in his lecture on the "Yellow Peril," pointed out that under the present system we should soon see Japan and China with their low standard of living and consequent cheap labor power, become manufacturing nations, and that we should either have to lower our standard of living or give more efficient service or go down and out. Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

TAKING A CHANCE.

WHAT'S the use of writing this. Working on the lines and meter. So it has a graceful swing. And has sort of meter? Who will read it any way? Who will appreciate or ponder On the work in molding it? That the writer has to squander!

Many gems of purest ray, Some near-sens, too, are a loser And are wasted on the air. Just for lack of a peruser. And with work enough for two. Women in the kitchen cooking. Over it may run their eyes. Without for the jewel looking.

That's the way with many things In which we put gray matter. By the way side of success. Never getting to the batter. It is the work enough for two. As its vision truly drifted. Over time or such as this. It perhaps might be uplifted.

Who will read these simple lines? Will some soul subdued and stoic. Frigid every single word. With a patience quite heroic? Much obliged if you're the one. We will ever be your debtor. Had we not suspected this. We had tried to make them better.

What She Expects. "Women have simply no understanding of business."

"Not at all. Take my wife, for example. What do you think she looks to me for?"

"Give it up." "To be a savings bank on my own account."

"That's not a bad idea." "But, in addition, she expects me to be a bank of issue for her."

Her Evidence. "Why did Mrs. Brown look so down-cast and disheartened?"

"She said her husband never thinks about her any more."

"Indeed?" "Yes; just regards her as a part of the unregarded household furniture."

"What makes her think so?" "He never sails her to have her photographs taken."

Reasonable. "I have my opinion, sir."

"Have you, my dear?" "I have."

"Then I ask only one thing." "What is it?"

"That you keep it to yourself."

Unappreciated. The coming of old water. Makes cowards of us all. We creep and we cower. And for our mother's sake. We wail and we howl. That we must tolerate. But it would not be a little. But it would call us into.

Cause of Complaint. "Seems to me the moon has a kick coming."

"On what grounds?" "Well, it is the brightest I saw any of the night and yet it isn't as bright as a star part."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

Money is said to be the root of all evil, and many people are quite philanthropic enough to sit up nights to devise schemes to root the evil out.

The winter of discontent that the coal and ice men enter untold paings from as sweet, warm and pleasant for the rest of us.

It takes a lot of courage to secure a rich wife, but it is by no means certain that it doesn't take greater to amuse one that isn't.

In this world of contraries there is no use in trying to have the other fellow get your point of view, for if he were to it would be yours.

It is a touching sight to see an old acquaintance, and in some pathetic case it is a poor prospect that is nearest bit.

The fellow who gets the worst of it, being wise, swallows his discomfiture, denies its existence and pretends to claim the victor's laurels through the pages of the magazines.

Some eminently sensible people are the cause of a long list of fruitless, nervousities and crimes in the lives of others.

A man doesn't admire a clever woman for the same reason that he does not admire a clever man. He is a little afraid of each of them.

The really heroic things that we do, like eating a bad dinner and saying it is good, never get into the media circles.

Probably all's well that ends well, but when the good end is a long way off there's not much comfort in the old and worthless saw.

Peter Olsen Answers Dr. Grant.

To the Editor of the News.

Sir—It is with a feeling of regret that this opportunity is taken to point out to Dr. Grant that he either does not want to know or does not know what he is talking about in so far as practical Socialism is concerned.

Regret that the doctor should waste his time and energy in trying to frustrate the good work of others.

In the first place, the Socialist party in Canada is not, and does not pretend to be, a reform party. We have a platform "clear and concise," setting forth the aim and object of the party. The attempt of the doctor to make the impression on others that we have no platform and

A lively contest took place for the vacancy in Division One in L.I.D. 49-A-5 on Friday last when John Lamonte and A. Rogers contested the seat. After a hard fought, close contest, Rogers was returned by a small majority over his opponent.

Last Monday about thirty-five members and friends of the Circle Guild of the Methodist church enjoyed very much the debate given by four young ladies on "Resolved, a cross, tidy woman is more agreeable to live with than an untidy, goodnatured one." The speeches by the negative were well taken and very entertaining, but as the affirmative had more points the judges decided in their favor.

In speaking to Justice Wallace with regard to police matters, we were agreeably surprised to learn that there has only been one arrest for drunkenness in Red Deer during the last three months and that one case was an outsider. As this takes in the holidays, we were skeptical, but the police inform us that such was absolutely the case. No place in Canada to-day can show a better record, and Red Deer citizens can feel justly proud that they have such a clean, temperate and progressive town to live in.

Hockey.

Red Deer met the champion Adanaco team on Saturday night and a fast clean game was the result. The Adanacos scored one minute after play was commenced but after that the play was very even until half time, neither side scoring, although C. Hewson put in two close shots. After half time the Adanacos pressed and succeeded in scoring twice from mix-ups in front of goal. Then Red Deer got down to work and began to do things. Through C. Hewson they scored twice in two minutes and had another disputed goal which was not counted. The final score was 3-2 in favor of the travelling team. The Red Deer team were: Goal, Grant; point, Willen; cover, Smith; rover, Brumpton; centre, Hewson; left, Porter; right, Marle. The Adanacos were defeated at Stettler 7-5 and won at Lacombe 5-4.

We understand the High School team have been trying to persuade the Bankers to play them a game but the Bankers seem to be a little shy, and do not like to show themselves.

Stettler defeated the Edmonton Deacons once and were defeated once, in two games at Edmonton last week.

City League Hockey.

Owing to the severe weather the city hockey league did not play their game last week. The first match is called for Monday evening next, when the Waskasoons and Wanderers will line up for a good lively contest. It will take six games to finish the series, and two will be played a week. Considerable interest is being taken in this series, and some keen hockey may be looked for.
